To Whom It May Concern:

When it came time for our daughters to go to nursery for the first time at 18 months, we like every parent had more than a few moments of trepidation as we handed our child over to a environment they might not be familiar and a teacher they do not know.

We knew that our daughters would eventually adapt to the change, but what we were not prepared for was how smoothly it would happen. The teachers at House of Kids, welcomed our daughters, and the rest of the class, to the school with open arms that let the children know from the start that their classroom would be a magical place where they would learn, laugh, grow and flourish.

Our daughters fell in love with teachers there very quickly.

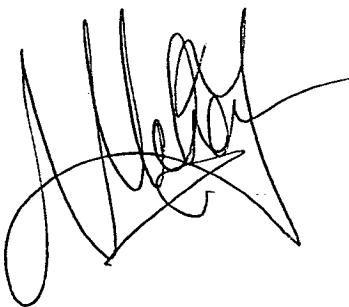

And we, as parents, are so thankful to have the teachers of the House of Kids as their first teachers. Not only did we get the sense that their would be a safe and caring environment, but the teachers' passion for education gave us the confidence that the classroom would be a great place of learning.

The teachers at the House of Kids are confident and professional. Poised, fun and in control of their classroom. I believe that the really great educators are the ones who have a true love for the profession and I believe that all the teachers there have a true love for early childhood teaching.

House of Kids has filled our daughters with a passion for learning, confidence that they can accomplish anything that they put their mind to and, we believe, has started our children on a great path that can lead them to great places.

I am,

Sincerely yours,
